Subject: Some of his undesirable companions

Dear Tanuj,

I hope this letter finds you well. I am writing to you because I am concerned about some of the people you are spending time with. While I know you have your own social circle, I want to warn you about certain individuals who may not have your best interests at heart.

These people may encourage you to engage in risky or illegal activities, which could have serious consequences for your future. They may also be a negative influence on your character, values, and overall wellbeing.

As your older brother, I care about your safety and want to see you succeed in life. I urge you to be cautious and selective in choosing your friends. Surround yourself with positive, trustworthy individuals who will support and encourage you to be the best version of yourself.

Take care, and I look forward to hearing from you soon.

Sincerely,

Abhinav

Subject: To provide library books to students

Respected Sir,

I am writing this letter to bring to your attention the importance of providing library books to students in our college. As you are aware, the library is a crucial resource for students, providing them access to a wealth of knowledge and information. However, it has come to my attention that the library's book collection is inadequate and students are facing difficulties in finding the necessary books for their studies.

I request you to kindly take the necessary steps to ensure that the library is adequately stocked with books that cater to the needs of all students. This can be achieved by investing in new books, including academic textbooks and other relevant literature. In addition, it is important to ensure that the library staff are trained to help students locate and access the required books.

Furthermore, I suggest that the college make an effort to encourage donations of books from alumni and other sources. This would help to build a diverse and comprehensive collection of books that can benefit students for years to come.
